VOLUME XLIV.

Supreme Judicial Court.

October Term.

The first case to be tried at this term of court was the case of Hattie E. Delano vs. the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Co., of Hartford, Conn., was begun before the first jury, Thursday afternoon. The suit was brought on a policy of insurance issued to Miss Delano of Canton in 1911 for $1,000 payable to his wife, Hattie E. Delano, in case of his death. Fred M. Jordan was the agent. The policy was executed by an officer of the company without any accompanying statement.

Mr. Delano a few days after, while eating his lunch, a piece of meat became lodged in his throat. The local physician was unable to remove it and he was then removed to a hospital where an operation was performed. Mr. Delano did not recover but died at the hospital.

The insurance company refused to pay the insurance on the ground that the premiums were not paid when the suit was brought. When the afternoon's session of court closed Thursday, all the evidence had been closed. Friday morning the court in a clear and impartial charge gave the case to the jury and a short while after a verdict for the plaintiff was returned.

The case of Warren A. Emery of Bethel and Chas. P. Rose of Norway vs. J. F. Garrity Co. of Bangor was the next case on trial. A suit brought to recover for three carloads of lumber which the defense claims were not according to contract. The plaintiffs put on the stand as witnesses were Chas. P. Rose, Warren A. Emery, Albert Turgeon, O. H. Fuller and Arthur M. Jackson.

J. F. Garrity, president of the company, and the only witness called by the defense took the stand. The case was sharply contested from start to finish. It was given to the jury Saturday forenoon, and after being out about two hours they returned a verdict of $977.00 for the plaintiffs.

Along came a team across the road and found it to be Mr. Tripp. He requested him to let him pass but claimed he did not move. As he swung out into the ditch, Tripp hit him three times with a whip.

After the case was explained for the defense by Attorney Alton C. Wheeler, and state attorney, Fred Dyer, reviewed and the charge was given to the jury by the judge, they were told that to determine whether there was an assault, after weighing the testimony, and to return a verdict of what they found. The case was before the first panel.

NORTH FRYEBURG.

Warketta Co., No. 18.
On Oct. 15, 43 members of Warketta Co., No. 18, D. of P., took a very pleasant auto trip to visit Neola Co., No. 14, D. of P., at Kezar Falls. After the examination of the degree work by each company, which was given in a very creditable manner, supper was served in the banquet hall. After having spent a very pleasant evening, Warketta Co., returned home at a late hour.

WEST FRYEBURG.

An Oxford County Boy at Panama Canal.
The Stirling Literary Club met Wednesday, Oct. 15th at the home of Mrs. Emma E. Walker.

The subject of the Panama Canal was continued, the members present reading in turn from the text book. Mention made of the recent publication in a Portland newspaper of an article commendatory of Roy Sturdivant, who held an important position in the work of the great canal.

Roy was a West Fryeburg youth and a student at Fryeburg Academy, while living with his father, the late William L. Sturdivant at their home now the Riverside Farm of Clarence Smith. The Sturdivants were held in high esteem while in this neighborhood and the appreciation of others is pleasing to those knowing them. An older brother, G. H. Sturdivant is a prosperous physician in Yarmouth.

An amusing feature of the club program was the reading of written papers, which had been assigned to each member present at the previous meeting. Considerable merriment was elicited by these readings.

Following adjournment at 4 p. m., the club enjoyed the excellent ice cream served by Mrs. Walker and departing all united in declaring the meeting an enjoyable occasion.

The motto at the head of the first page of the Advertiser is a good idea. There is a suggestion of the Lincolnian in it. We like it.

John Elia, residing on East Conway street was seriously injured last week by being thrown from the wagon in which he and Bert Ridlon were riding on their return from work. The horse in a playful freak kicked the cross bar and smashed the front part of the vehicle. Mr. Ridlon jumped and escaped with something of a shaking up but Mr. Elia, less agile, was thrown upon the ground, his knee striking a protruding root and rendering him helpless. He was taken to his home where he remains a great sufferer, his case being complicated with his advanced age and the fact of a former fracture of the same leg a few years ago.

Mrs. G. H. Coleman, who has been in ill health for a number of months, is much better.

Mrs. Sarah Stevens, who was operated on for appendicitis a few weeks ago, is now gaining.

A number from this section are suffering from bad colds, James Hardy, being one of the victims.

Mr. and Mrs. John Reagan and friend from Boston are at Mr. Coleman's on their annual vacation.

Two young ladies from Biddeford, driving their own car, motored to Willis Farrington's last week.

Will Howe, a late resident in this section, has purchased a small place in the vicinity of Brunswick.

The friends of Mrs. Frank L. Eastman, a former resident here, passed through a serious operation at the Maine General Hospital, at Portland, Oct. 16, and is as comfortable as can be expected. She has been an invalid for a number of years and hopes she may regain her former health.

Wooden Shoes Made

In the United States.
In this country beech is the favorite material for wooden shoes, the manufacture of which has reached considerable proportions in the United States according to the department of agriculture, which has just issued a bulletin on the use of the wood. These shoes, the department says cost from 60 to 75 cents a pair and are good for two years. They are made by those who have to work in cold or wet places, such as tanneries, breweries, and livery stables, and by workmen in steel mills and glass factories who must walk on hot grates or floors. Farmers, too are classed among the users. Beech wood is put to a very much wider range of uses than the average person would be likely to suspect. The department says beech enters into hundreds of articles from hobby-horse rockers to butchers' blocks. We walk on beech floors, eat off beech picnic plates, carry beech baskets, play with beech toys, sit on beech chairs, and in dozens of other ways use articles made of beech almost every day of our lives. Its freedom from taste fits the wood especially for articles which come in contact with foodstuffs, and beech meat boards, skewers, land tubs, butter boxes, sugar hogsheads, refrigerators, dishes, spoons and scoops are widely used.
Only one species of beech grows naturally in the United States, but few trees in this country have the commercial value of the European beech. It extends from the Gulf of Mexico into Eastern Canada, and practically every place where it grows it is out for market. The total yearly output of beechwood in the United States is approximately 500 million board feet. Would not wooden shoes make an excellent industry for the wooded region of Norway?

NORWAY AND VICINITY

An Exciting Accident.

Saturday morning about 11 o'clock, a horse owned by Mr. Hill a Finn of Waterford was hitched at the rear of Drake & Brooks' Grocery Store when it became frightened, broke loose and ran around the hitching place at breakneck speed. Harry Jackson's team was hitched there and the hill horse, dashing with harness and shafts, ran into its head, frightening him and both horses came out between Drake & Brooks' store and Jackson's market at terrific speed. They turned up Main street, one slipped and fell on the corner by Richardson's market the other fell on the car track.
The most serious damage was done to the harness and shafts of both teams. The bulkhead at Drake & Brooks was well smashed up.
Mrs. Charles Morse and Homer R. Luck, who were crossing the lot came within a foot of the teams as they ran onto Main street.

Looking Backward.

By GRANVILLE FERNALD.

In Otisfield.—VIII.
While in some of my former sketches I have described some of the topographical features of my native town, I am reminded that there is a very interesting section, the origin of which is a part of the corporation, may be quite unknown to a great number of the present generation of the people of the town. I will tell them another story of olden times about Otisfield as the "Gore" it acquired its present form and boundary lines.

Otisfield Gore is one of the most familiar titles for a neighborhood in the northeast section of the town, particularly that part of which the Gore school-house and Grange hall are the center. How many of my readers ever heard of Phillips' Gore? Here is my story.
In my earliest boyhood years I was accustomed to hear my friends speak of Phillips' Gore. Although I soon came to know where it was, and to know many of the people living there, I never knew why it was so called, because I did not exercise my native curiosity or inquisitiveness to find out, which I might have learned by inquiring of my father or any citizen of that period. Perhaps you, my gentle friend, do not care to know, and may not thank the garrulous scribe for raking up forgotten facts about the locality of your homesteads, and may even resent this infliction of the yarn I have in mind to relate.

During the past summer it was my privilege to examine a copy of the original plan or chart of Otisfield, authorized by the proprietors of the township, Harrison Gray Otis and others of Massachusetts.
From that plan (call it a map) I learned the location of the township on its eastern side, extending from Norway town line at its northeast corner 2620 rods to Poland, and of the width of about 500 rods, containing more than 8000 acres is that portion of the town known as the "Gore." Over 1000 acres of this portion of the town is in Thompson pond.

There are 57 numbered lots in the Gore, besides a narrow strip extending between the main town of Otisfield and Thompson pond. This strip is not numbered to lots, and is from 80 to 100 rods wide, extending to Casco town line. The west line of the Gore cuts a small corner of Moose pond leaving that body of water and all that section east of the residence of Albion and Henry Edwards in Phillips' Gore.
The Gore passes a little to the west of East Otisfield schoolhouse and included a narrow strip of Scribner's Hill.
This tract of land was originally laid out as a part of Hebron, and was, doubtless divided between that town and Otisfield in the original plan of the proprietors. Hebron, was afterward divided, the portion set off becoming Oxford. About 300 acres of the original Gore is in Oxford.

An investigation of this subject in the Registry of Deeds of Cumberland county opens a field of information, first that Phillips' Academy of Andover, Mass., appearing first of 55 grantors of deeds to lands in and after the close of the 18th century gave deeds to the number of 234, all of which are recorded in Cumberland County Registry of Deeds.
The indexes of these deeds show that all the grantors of deeds to lands in Cumberland county, besides Phillips Academy of the name of Phillips were of persons (men and women, probably heirs to a large landed estate) who consisted of the Phillips family of Maine granted to some person or persons by the name of Phillips.)
The person from whom the settlers on Phillips Gore purchased lands was John Phillips, Jr., of Andover, county of Essex, who died in 1800. Some of the deeds dated in the years about 1800 and row to well remembered original purchasers and residents of the Gore, to wit: Timothy Jordan, Dennis Lovell, Thomas Edes, Barnabas Sawyer, Zachariah Weston, William Sawyer, Robert A. Anderson, John Linnell, Daniel Cobb, Jr., John Winship, John F. Bean, Ezekiel Robt, Thomas Lombard, Benjamin Farrington, Peter Robt, Benjamin Lovell, John Scribner, Jr.

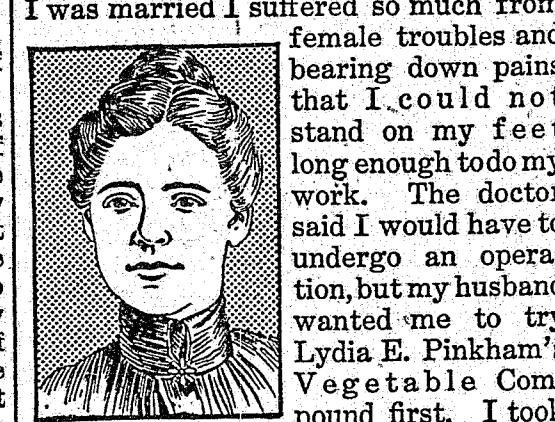

These are not all, many other towns in Cumberland county included lands sold to settlers or speculators in lands by some of the numerous Phillips proprietors. That is the story in brief of Phillips Gore in Otisfield.
My recollections of Phillips Gore and map of the original families of the section date back to about 80 years. They were large families and were nearly all church going people, from the dwellers near the Norway line to the residents of Scribner's Hill. They came by dozens and by scores in carriages and on foot and attend reverently the church services at the spacious new free meeting house at Holdenville, now known as East Otisfield.

One well remembered family was that of Capt. Joseph Haskell, who lived on an excellent farm in the upper part of the Gore near the Norway line. His wife was a daughter of Maj. Jonathan Moore, one of the earliest settlers of the town. They raised a goodly family of sons and daughters, well known in the town and in my memory so vivid are the impressions of a boy of the scenes and persons known in his first years of life.
The Farringtons too, all of the older generations long since passed away. Old Grandfather Farrington, who lived on the road running by the Jonathan Ward well home toward the Greely Hill (if any of my readers remember that old road to Oxford Village, Craiges Mills) he used to walk to church regularly every Sunday, a distance of about three miles, so much did he love the "assembly of the saints" and the "preached word."
Father Farrington was at that period at least 70 years old or more. He was a man of sterling piety, a Methodist and hardly ever failed to improve his opportunity when the minister, and "liberty" to rise and give an earnest and fervent exhortation, leaning upon his stout staff. Such scenes can never be forgotten.
One of the most constant attendants at the church service was the family of Nathaniel Lamb, four or five sons and

MRS. MANGLES ESCAPES OPERATION

How She Was Saved From Surgeon's Knife by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mogadore, Ohio.—"The first two years I was married I suffered so much from female troubles and bearing down pains that I could not stand on my feet long enough to do my work. The doctor said I would have to undergo an operation, but my husband wanted me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound first. I took three bottles and it made me well and strong and I avoided a dreadful operation. I now have two fine healthy children, and I cannot say too much about what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. LEE MANGLES, R. F. D. 10, Mogadore, Ohio.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?
For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

a daughter, who were not members of the church that I remember, but had the habit of going as a means of social enjoyment and as a matter of principle. They were an excellent family whether at home or at church.

One of the most conspicuous of the old men I can remember was Uncle John Scribner, in his last years of life. He was of very portly form and as he came up the aisle of the church, supported by his long staff, his venerable form and snowy locks suggested one of the old prophets of Israel.

There were many Scribners, two or three generations that I remember well. I have a distinct impression to this day of the beautiful, expressive eyes of the race of Scribners in Otisfield. It is a feature of the family yet to be seen in some of the children of the family I know. I hope no exceptions will be taken to their reminiscences of a well-favored family of people whom to know was always a pleasure.
It is the people that make the state; why not the town? And while I have mentioned by name only few families who formerly resided on the Gore, be assured that the names, their forms and faces are nearly everyone treasured yet in this mysterious storehouse of mine, the memory.

Nature's Own Wrapping Keeps Tobacco Best

No artificial package—tin, bag, or tin-foil and paper—can keep tobacco as well as the natural leaf wrapper that holds all the original flavor and moisture in the Sickle plug. When you whittle off a pipeful, you always get fresh tobacco, that burns slowly, and smokes cool and sweet.

Chopped-up, "package" tobacco loses much of its moisture before it goes into the package, and keeps getting drier all the time. And the drier it gets, the faster it burns in your pipe, and the more it bites your tongue. Only fresh tobacco gives real pipe-satisfaction—and only tobacco you cut off the Sickle plug as you use it, can be fresh.

Economical, too—no waste—no package to pay for—more tobacco. Get a Sickle plug from your dealer today.

Plea for All Birds Even Hawk and Owl.

An attempt is made to make all persons acquainted with 50 common birds and their nestlings, in a booklet in a bulletin freely distributed by the bureau of biological survey at Washington. A description of the appearance and habit of each bird is given that he may be appreciated for what he is doing apart from filling the air with gladness and be protected and nurtured for it. A direct appeal is made to children.

Introducing the birds, one at a time, this preliminary comment is made: "Entomologists have estimated that insects yearly cause a loss upward of $700,000,000 to the agricultural interests of the United States. Were it not for our birds the loss would be much greater and, indeed, it is believed without aid of our feathered friends successful agriculture would be impossible."

"A knowledge of the birds that protect the crops is, therefore, as important as a knowledge of the insect pests that destroy them. Such knowledge is the more important because the relation of birds to man's interests is extremely complex.

"Thus while it may be said that most of our birds are useful, there are only a few of them that are always and everywhere useful and that never do harm. Insectivorous birds, for instance, destroy along with a vast number of harmful insects, some parasitic and predatory kinds. These latter are among nature's most effective agents for keeping destructive insects in check.

"To the extent, then, that birds destroy useful parasitic insects they are harmful. But, taking the year around, the good they do by the destruction of insects injurious to man's interests far outweighs the little harm they do. It may be said, too, that of the birds usually classed as noxious there are very few which do not possess redeeming traits. Thus the crow is mischievous in spring and sorely taxes the farmer's patience and ingenuity to prevent him from pulling up the newly planted corn.

"Moreover the crow destroys the eggs and young of insectivorous and game birds but, on the other hand, he eats many insects, especially white grubs and cut worms, and destroys many meadow mice, so that in many respects he is of the region he inhabits the crow must be considered more useful than harmful.

"Most of the hawks and owls even—birds that have received so bad a name that the farmer's boy and the sportsmen are ever on the alert to kill them—are very useful. They destroy vast numbers of insects and harmful rodents.

"Birds occupy a unique position among the enemies of insects, since their power of flight enables them at short notice to gather at points where there are abnormal insect outbreaks. A unusual abundance of grasshoppers, for instance, in a given locality soon attracts the birds from a wide area, and as a rule their visits cease only when there are no grasshoppers left. So also, a marked increase in the number of small rodents in a given neighborhood speedily attracts the attention of hawks and owls, which, by reason of their voracious appetites, soon produce a marked diminution of the swarming foe.

"No other creatures are so well fitted to capture, fly, insects as swallows, swifts and nighthawks. Among the avian ranks also are wrens, trim of body and agile of movement, that creep in and out of holes and crevices and explore rubbish heaps for insects.

"The woodpecker whose whole body exhibits wonderful adaptation of means to end, is provided with strong claws for holding firmly when at work, a chisel-like bill driven by powerful muscles to dig out insects, and a long extensible tongue to still further explore the hidden streets of insects' land, drag forth the concealed larvae, safe from other foes.

"The creepers, titmice, warblers, flycatchers, quail, doves and other families have each their own special field of activity. However unlike they may be in appearance, structure, and habits all are similar in one respect—they possess a never flagging appetite for insects and weed seeds.

"One of the most useful groups of native birds is the sparrow family. With the exception of the house sparrow, which has been introduced from Europe, most of the sparrows are clad in modest brown and they lay the farmer under a heavy debt of gratitude for their food habits since their chosen fare consists largely of the seeds of weeds.

"Scotting a typical member of the group, the tree sparrow, for instance, one-fourth ounce of weed seed per day is a conservative estimate of the food of an adult. On this basis in a large agricultural state like Iowa, tree sparrows annually eat approximately 875 tons of weed seed.

"Some idea of the money value of this group of birds to the country may be gained from the statement that the total value of the farm products in the United States in 1910 reached the amazing sum of $5,926,000,000. If we estimate that the total consumption of weed seed by the combined members of the sparrow family resulted in a saving of only one per cent. of the crops—not a violent assumption—the sum saved to farmers by these birds in 1910 was $5,926,000.

"The current idea in relation to hawks and owls is erroneous. These birds are generally classed as thieves and robbers, whereas a large majority of them spend the greater part of their lives in pursuit of injurious insects and rodents. The hawks work by day, the owls by night, so the useful activities of the two classes are continued practically throughout the 24 hours.

"As many as 100 grasshoppers have been found in the stomach of a Swallow's hawk, representing a single meal, and in the retreat of a pair of barn owls have been found more than 3,000 skulks, 80 per cent. of which were of mammals, the bulk consisting of field mice, house mice and common rats. Nearly half a bushel of the remains of pocket gophers—animals which are destructive in certain parts of the United States—was found near a nest of this species.

"The notable increase of noxious rodents during the last few years in certain parts of the United States and the consequent damage to crops are due to the diminished number of birds of prey, which formerly destroyed them and aided in keeping down their numbers. A few hawks are injurious, and the bulk of the depredations on bird and chickens chargeable against hawks is committed by three species—the Cooper's hawk, the sharp-shinned hawk and the goshawk. The farmer's boy should learn to know these daring robbers by sight so as to kill them whenever possible.

Was Able to Sleep and Eat Again

Mrs. Mueller says: "I kept Peruna in the house constantly. When I am not feeling well I take a few doses. It always restores."

Mrs. Mueller's story of her experience with Peruna fully explains why she always keeps Peruna on hand.

A few years ago P. O. Box 321, Hawley, she was very sick. The trouble seemed to be the stomach and liver. She suffered great pain. Was unable to get anything to help her. She was growing weaker and weaker. She became tired of life.

Somebody suggested that she write to the Peruna Co. She did so. Through their advice she began to use Peruna. In a letter from her at this time she says: "Through the use of Peruna I have regained my health. I took only a bottle and a half when I was able to sleep and eat again and my nervousness disappeared." No wonder Mrs. Mueller keeps Peruna in the house. Under similar circumstances Peruna would be in every house in the land.

Any one taking Peruna ought to have a free copy of the "Bills of Life." Address Peruna Co., Columbus, Ohio. People who object to liquid medicines can now obtain Peruna Tablets.

SWEDEN.

Mrs. Thomas Jefferson.
Mrs. Thomas Jefferson, a very aged resident of the town of Sweden passed away Oct. 12, after a severe illness of many months, she was a very patient sufferer. Even at the worst she asked how she was getting on. "Oh, pretty well," she would say. She joined the Congregational church some fifty years ago and has always lived up to that faith.
She and her husband came up to this town to live fifty-four years ago. He passed over the river several years before her, they both being very honorable and industrious people and very kind and obliging neighbors. Mrs. Jefferson's outlook to the young was always good.
Two daughters were born of their union, one daughter dying in infancy, the other, who was united in marriage to William J. Bryan a few years ago, has lived at the home and both have tenderly cared for their aged father and mother until the end came, the daughter, Katie never leaving her mother for an hour of pleasure.
She looked heavenly as she lay in her casket beneath a large bouquet of eighty-eight white pinks to represent her age.
The services were conducted by Henry Brown of Lovell. Words of comfort were spoken to the family and friends by Rev. M. O. Balzer of the same place.

A dance followed the banquet and all returned to their homes well pleased with the royal hospitality they had received.
The funeral of Mrs. John Stanley took place at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Nettie Holmes, on the afternoon of Oct. 19th. Three ministers were in attendance. Rev.
